Cleaner Air on a Shoestring

Our new Government has committed to working towards EU air quality standards as part of its coalition agreement, reinforcing the calls made in the Environmental Audit Committee's 'Air Quality' report that air quality must be a higher priority for Government. However, in a financially constrained environment how can national Government, local authorities and their partners ensure that they implement measures which provide the maximum air quality benefits at the lowest possible costs?

This year's Environmental Protection UK Autumn Update will focus on low cost air quality management measures, examining best practice from across the public and private sectors. As usual, the event will also present a topical update on air quality issues.

Joe Dunckley www.cotch.net

Our programme will include:

- Implementation of the Defra review of Local Air Quality Management
- Progress on low emission strategies, toolkits and more
- Renewable energy support packages and their air quality impacts

Discussion will form a core part of the event, giving you the opportunity to put questions to our expert speakers, raise issues and discuss key topics with your peers.

The Autumn Update will be of particular relevance to:

- Environmental managers from the private and public sectors
- Air quality and environmental consultants
- Local authority officers engaged in local air quality review and assessment, transport and planning
- Elected members with an environment brief or interest

A full programme will be available shortly on our website
